Dessert Tasting & Consultation Form

The consultation is for you to taste cookies and pastries you're interested and extra details such as:

- Chocolate color preferences (other than the standard)
- Sprinkles
- Other sizes available from the regular menu
- Pick up or delivery options

During the consultation I will provide you with a few samples to go home for others to try.

The complimentary fee of $30.00 will be deducted should you decide to make a purchase of a minimum order of $300.00. Under $300, I will deduct 10%. * This is worth it, considering that you may try almost all products.

PayPal fee of 2.9% is applied if payment is made with a credit card. To avoid this fee, you may pay with a check or cash.

I require 50% down when you place your order, and the balance three weeks before the event date.

*This discount does not apply if you book at an event since I am offering a 10% discount on your total order.

HOW MANY COOKIES/PASTRIES SHOULD I ORDER?

This is a question that comes up often during consultation. As a general rule, if you have cake and/or cupcakes, three cookies per person is recommended, if the cookies are petite (1 oz. or less).

If the pastries are large (from the regular menu) two would suffice. It also depends if you wish to have boxes or bags for guests to take some home. In that case, I recommend three to six per person.

Also, keep in mind how the pastries will be displayed?

If there is a dessert table and it's accessible during the cocktail hour, cookies can be wrapped with cellophane and the servers may unwrap them after the dinner. This will prevent guests of digging into the platters before dinner.

If a product is the same and some are dipped in white and some in dark chocolate they should be combined and identified so that guests will choose the dark or white. If they don't know, then they may take both.
